Here Is One For The Book--One J. P. Fines Another J. P.

Justice of the Peace Gene S. Regret of 137th St., and Monticello Ave., Bremen township, was fined a total of $25 Monday night by Police Magistrate Edw. Brookfelt of Dolton on charges of disorderly conduct and driving from one side of the street to the other. Policeman Grover Cogswell, who arrested Regret in Dolton, Nov. 16, testified that the justice of the peace was driving from side to side, became abusive when stopped, announced that he was a justice of the peace and didn't have to show his drivers' license, and threatened to "get" Cogswell's job. Regret said he would appeal the fines.

Schoen Family Made Homeless By Fire In Lincoln Est.

The Jennings dwelling south of the Lincoln Highway in the Lincoln Estates was destroyed by fire of unknown origin Thursday (yesterday) afternoon. The building has been occupied by the Edward Schoen family. The fire was noticed by neighbors about 1:30 p. m. No one was at home at the time. The blaze had a good headway and the structure was beyond saving. All the household effects and clothing of the Schoen family was burned.

The Schoen family were former Mokena residents.

DO YOU KNOW WHEN YOU WERE BORN?

County Clerk Joseph Hartley made the following informative radio broadcast last Saturday:

Friends we have been asked to give some facts on our office on our broadcast every Saturday morning between 10:30 and 11:00 o'clock A.M. we would be glad to answer questions which will be sent in by listeners. Our aim is to help you if we can on anything pertaining to this office. We must ask however that you come in or write. Do you know when you were born? Are you sure of it?

You may know your birthdate because its a certain day every year, because you have a cake with candles on it and get a lot of nice gifts. Or perhaps the family Bible or the Church records your arrival. But for some purposes just being sure you're alive isn't sufficient. You have to prove it. The law is notoriously suspicious and extremely unsentimental about such things.

With this in mind, we are bringing the birth records marriage and death records up to date with a card index system, files of various colored cards each color indicating a separate branch or statistics has been installed to make readily available all the data on people born in Will County, or married or died in this County.

Under the old method huge ledgers were kept posted in a more complicated system. Entries for births, marriages and deaths were kept separately and not in perfect alphabetical arrangement so that looking for a baby or a bride would be almost as difficult as looking for a needle in a haystack. Although it has been compulsory to register births and deaths since 1915, there are some entries dating back as far as 1877. Before 1915 registering a child or a deceased person was more or less a matter of choice, and many persons would find it difficult to produce legal evidence of their existence.

Now of course all such data must be registered according to law. Being able to get thru a WPA project, records are being classified and placed in the neat easily accessible index records. Guaranteeing the handling of these vital records in a prompt and accurate manner. All this work does not cost the County any money, the only items being materials such as cards, filing cabinets, etc.

Birth records are parents birthplace, age of parents, name of child misspelled, omitted date of child's birth, wrong sex etc. to date we have found 41,944 omissions, misspellings etc. According to the present laws it is necessary for the attending physician if living to make the corrections on birth records, or if he is deceased or cannot be located, an older blood relative preferably mother or father, can make the corrections, or supply the necessary data, with the exception of the spelling of the last name or date of child's birth, it is necessary for the physician or midwife attending the birth, before 1915, if your birth is not recorded we will tell you how to get it recorded, but please check with this office first to see there will be no duplicates.

Will County is about seventy five percent ahead of all other Counties in the State in the matter of revising Birth, Marriage and Death records, having worked on this for some time. So if you are wondering about being able to prove that you were born come in and check your record.

Mokena R.N.A. Will Hold Monthly Meeting December 9

The Mokena camp of Royal Neighbors will hold their monthly meeting in Hatch hall, Mokena, December 9 at 8 p.m. An election of officers will be held at this meeting.

Frankfort Plans To Erect St. Name Signs And Number Houses

Frankfort will soon be putting on metropolitan airs if the plans of the local Lions club for numbering the houses and erecting street signs bearing the names of the various streets throughout the village, goes into effect.

For sometime it has been very difficult for strangers and especially traveling men to find residences of people they were looking for. The only way they had of obtaining the information regarding their location was by inquiring at business places.

It is felt that if the houses are numbered and street signs erected it will be a very easy matter to establish the locations of the various residences. Just how soon this plan will go into effect has not been stated.

New Lenox Boy First Class Seaman Takes Trip To Liverpool, England

Word has been received from Jack Gougar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Gougar of New Lenox that he left the states on Navy Day for Liverpool, England.

Jack is a first class seaman on the torpedo airplane carrier U.S.S. Yorktown. He was gone two weeks. The ship was on convoy duty with the Bundles to Britain ship. He is a radio aviator on board ship. When they were within twelve hours of Liverpool the Rubeen James was sunk. The Yorktown was immediately behind it and they saw it sink and they found it a very exciting time.

Jack is back in the states at Portland, Maine and expects to be home for Christmas. Later on he plans to go to Pensicola, Fla. to learn flying.

Will County Interested in CYO Boxing Tournament

The suburban section of the Eleventh annual CYO boxing Tournament will be held at Catholic High, Joliet, Wednesday and Thursday, December 3 and 4, it was announced by Rev. A. T. Colgan, suburban CYO director. All boys over sixteen are eligible to compete.

Every contestant is to receive a medal. Additional medals and trophies will be awarded to finalists and the team scoring the greatest number of points. Winners in the suburban eliminations will compete in Chicago the following week for the right to represent the archdiocese in the major cities of the country. Bouts are fought in eight weight classes in three divisions. Beginner, novice and open. The beginner division is formed this year for the first time.

The suburban section embraces Lemont, Orland Park, Mokena, Joliet, Lockport and the other towns south of Chicago.

Boys wishing to enter should notify Father Colgan at Lewis School of Aeronautics, Lockport.

"The addition of the beginner division," said Father Colgan, "is a wise move. It eliminates the inequality arising from having a beginner meet a boy who is a novice but a veteran of several contests. The new policy also aims to keep boxers in the novice division until they are experienced enough to face the more severe competition in the open division."

"Every precaution is taken to prevent injury to the fighters. No boy is allowed to enter the ring before taking a physical examination, which is provided without charge. A physician experienced in conditions of the ring is on hand at all bouts to see that no contest is continued when there is danger to one of the contestants."

Wet Weather Holds Up Harvest of Soy Bean Crop

The continued wet weather of this fall has delayed the farmers in harvesting their soy bean crop. Many of the beans have been damaged by the excessive moisture and there will be some loss. The price on soy beans exceeds that of grain. A good first class group of soy beans brings around $1.50 per bushel, but of late the price has declined to $1.35 up to $1.40. The soy bean crop this year was exceptionally heavy as also was the corn crop. Hybrid corn has resulted in producing large yields.

Correction!

Thru a typographical error the date on the Wm. Nagle sale adv. appearing in this issue is given as "Saturday, Dec. 7, 1941" when it should read "Saturday, Dec. 6, 1941".

Frankfort Seeks Placement of Stop and Go Lights

Frankfort has a very heavily traveled intersection of highways at the north end of the town. At one time there were only four corners but now there are five since Route 45 passes through the edge of town. This five cornered point has been the scene of a number of accidents and considering the amount of traffic the Lions club of Frankfort felt that this point should be given more adequate protection by way of stop and go lights. A move is now on to take the matter up with state highway department and see what can be done about having such lights installed.

4H CLUB MEMBERS LIVE STOCK ENTRIES

Harold and Robert Reiter of New Lenox and members of the Manhattan 4H Boosters club, have entered four steers in the International Live Stock show. Harold entered Hereford and Shorthorn steers. Robt. entered an Aberdeen Angus and a shorthorn. Chas. Francis of New Lenox and a member of the Frankfort New Lenox 4H club also entered two steers, a Hereford and an Angus. Roy Ebert, Mokena has entered an Angus steer and his sister Irene has entered a Shorthorn steer. Don Stephen of Mokena has entered an Angus steer. Let's hope they all win.

Mrs. V. M. Seron, Joliet, Guest Speaker at Mokena P.T.A. Meeting.

Members of the PTA who attended the November meeting last Tuesday evening were amply repaid for the two hours spent in the interest of their school. The guest speaker, Mrs. V. M. Seron, of Joliet held the interest of her audience up to her last word. She spoke on "Planned Home Reading for Children" and in an intimate way impressed on the minds of all not only the value of good books for children but also reviewed in a most interesting fashion some of the outstanding books in this line. During the business session the various committee chairmen gave their monthly reports. Mrs. J. Hayden presented the annual budget for the year. The sum of $96. was appropriated.

Mr. Adolph Steen read a part of the work done by the Committee on By laws. The balance of this report will be read in future meetings.

A special attraction of the evening was a display of books and toys suitable for Christmas gifts. Mesdames G. Rinke, J. Walsh, M. Cooper and J. Hayden served during the social hour.

Mokena Girl's Biography to Appear In "Who's Who"

Miss Grace Moriarity, Mokena, is one of the ten students at the National College of Education, Evanston, Ill., whose biographies will appear in "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" this year, it was announced today.

Each year, students from over 550 schools are honored in this publication. The purpose of the "Who's Who" is to serve as an incentive for students to get the most out of their college careers, recognition of what they have done, and as a recommendation to the business world. Selections are based on qualities in character, leadership, and scholarship.

Miss Moriarity is president of the Assoc. for Childhood Education and holds the Mrs. John N. Crouse Scholarship this year. She was treasurer of the sophomore class and publications representative of the A.C.E. last year.

Other students cited for their outstanding leadership at the 55 year old teachers college are Pat Price, Riverside, Ill., Barbara Beall, Evanston, Marion Zeman, Manitowoc, Wis.; Harriet Shumway, Evanston, Phyllis Williams, Elmhurst, Ill., Mary May Crawford, Wilmette, Ill., Ethel Niergarth, Webster Groves, Mo., Molly Henderson, Fredericksburg, Va., and Kay Kelly, Patchogue, N.Y.

Alpine Community Club Sponsors Wedding Party

On November 25 the community Club of Alpine and also friends and relatives gathered at the Alpine School to help celebrate Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sayers' 10th wedding anniversary. A program and games were played in the evening. Later all marched down stairs where two tables for 30 people were set. The room and table were in pink and green. Mr. and Mrs. Sayers received many gifts and were wished many more years of happiness.

Mokena Red Cross Drive In Final Stage

"Credit where credit is due!" Believing that, the Red Cross Roll Call committee hastens to make amends for omitting inadvertently and unintentionally two names from the listing of Roll Call workers printed in last week's paper. The names are those of Mrs. Robt. Bechstein and Mrs. A. T. Shoop.

According to Roll Call Chairman Oliver Schaefer, the Roll Call drive for membership is in the final stage. He reports that several of the canvassers have already covered their territories completely. And he urges those folks who have not yet been visited by their Red Cross worker to get in touch with one of the committee or with him to secure a membership. Annual memberships are one dollar.

In connection with the drive, it is pointed out that all membership solicitors in the Mokena area are adults—no children have been authorized by the Roll Call Committee to ask for memberships.

Transferred to Ft. Dix

Word has been received from Pvt. Micheal Roberts that he has been transferred to Camp Ft. Dix, New Jersey. He is in the Military Police there and says it is a nice large camp. It is about 18 miles from Trenton and 80 miles from New York.

RUDOLPH BALLER DIES OF HEART AILMENT

Rudolph Baller, aged 56 years, a former resident of the Mokena territory and well known in this section, died last week in Chicago.

Mr. Baller was born April 12, 1885 in southern Hungary and came to America in 1902. He settled in Chicago where he was engaged in the food business for 35 years. In 1924 he bought a farm on Maple Street west of Wolf Road where he lived for two years. He then returned to Chicago and lived at 1448 East 67th street where he operated a grocery and market. After a short illness with a heart ailment he passed away and was buried in Holy Sepulchre cemetery.

He is survived by his sister, Mrs. Rose Beyer and three brothers, Gerhard, John and Adolph.

Mokena Banker On New Bank Board

The following article appeared in the Pecatonica paper last week regarding the new state bank being organized there and of which Otto Bartels formerly of the Mokena State Bank is to be the cashier:

"A meeting of the stockholders of the new Bank of Pecatonica was held Monday evening in the Legion Hall being attended by a goodly representation of the forty stockholders of the new institution, which will be a state bank with capitalization of $25,000, surplus of $2,500 and operating fund of $2,500.

"A board of five directors was elected consisting of J. H. Kampen, A. C. Woodruff, Otto Bartels, G. E. Jewell and P. D. Perley.

"J. H. Kampen was chosen as president, A. C. Woodruff, vice-president and Otto Bartels, cashier.

"Application for a state charter will be made through the bank's legal representatives, Attorneys Smith, Schultz & Smith of Rockford and it is very much hoped to open the new bank by the first of the year with Federal Deposit Insurance for protection of the depositors.

"Mr. Bartels, who is to have the responsible position of managing the bank, has had more than 33 years of experience in the banking business, 21 years in Iowa, and for the past 12 years in charge of a bank at Mokena, Illinois. He and his wife will move here to make their home before the bank opens."

Rubber and Tin In Malay States Are Rich Prize

Vital Area Controlled by British Supplies Important Products
For U. S. Industries.

(Colorful Singapore, Britain's largest foreign naval base, is well known as the source of important world news. Less is known, however, of the vast Malay peninsula, at whose tip Singapore's wharves load hundreds of ships with large supplies of rubber, tin and other riches of Malay, the Netherlands, Indies and Thailand. Because this section of the globe is now more than of vital interest in the news of the day the article below was prepared.)

(Exclusive to Western Newspaper Union and Copyrighted by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

On land which 50 years ago was a dense, tiger-infested jungle, plantation owners in the British-protected Malay States of southeastern Asia are producing more than a third of the world's rubber supply.

Much of the output is sent to the United States, for this country is not able to grow the rubber which its factories turn into tires, hose, mats, balloons, and a thousand-and-one other articles.

Why does rubber flourish in the Malay Peninsula?

Geography gives us the answer. Rubber trees need plenty of rain and hot weather. The Malay States are just north of the Equator, and their climate is one of the hottest and dampest in the world. Similar climate makes rubber production profitable also in the near-by Netherlands Indies.

Supply From Brazil.
The first rubber plants were brought to the Malay States from Brazil about 60 years ago, and it soon became evident that they would grow well there. Now the Malay region far surpasses Brazil in rubber output, partly because its plantations are readily accessible to railroads and seaports, while Brazil's rubber trees are far inland in wild country.

It was no easy job to clear mile after mile of underbrush and 60-foot trees from the Malay jungles so that plantations could be developed. Snakes and wild animals—tigers, elephants, buffaloes, and rhinoceroses—were a constant menace, and aboriginal savages threw poisonous darts at the workers. Large jungle areas, however, never have been cleared; some parts have not even been explored.

Long before plantations were laid out to grow rubber, pineapples, and other tropical farm products, the Malay Peninsula was an important source of tin. From its mines still comes about a third of the world's tin supply. Some of the tin cans in your kitchen cupboard were made from this Malayan ore, for the United States mines virtually no tin.

Tin From Mountains.
The tin ore is found in the heavily wooded mountain ranges which rise like a backbone along the Malay

The above map explains in detail the source of the important products obtained on the Malay peninsula. Most important of these supplies as indicated are, rubber, tin, pineapples and other tropical farm products. Japan, already entrenched in French Indo-China, reportedly could use many of the products now going to the United States and Great Britain.

Peninsula. The ore is dredged from tremendous open pits. Along with tin, miners dig for smaller amounts of gold, iron, manganese, lead and tungsten. The latter is vital for making the filament used in electric light bulbs.

The laborers who first mined the tin and who did much of the work of clearing the jungles were not the native Malays, but Chinese. The latter came to the region in large numbers, and now make up about two-fifths of the Malay States' population of some 4,000,000.

The Malays, short, brown-skinned and thick-set, with straight black hair, are a clever people, but like many residents of hot countries, they are not overly industrious. One reason is that food, clothing, and shelter are not hard to obtain. Many of the Malays wear only a jacket and a skirtlike sarong, live in clusters of bamboo or thatched huts built on piles, and eat little besides rice and fish.

British Development.
Development of the Malay States has been in the hands of the British ever since Sir Stamford Raffles, an Englishman who envisioned a great future for the region, founded the port of Singapore in 1819. Its site on an island at the southern tip of the peninsula was then part of the jungle, but now Singapore has grown into a colorful, cosmopolitan city, one of the world's leading ports.

Its importance as a shipping center is derived from its situation.

Ships traveling between the Pacific and the Indian oceans pass it. Singapore's wharves handle not only Malay rubber and tin—the latter is smelted in the city—but the riches of the Netherlands Indies and Thailand. The British have fortified the port as their largest foreign naval base.

Fatal Horse Malady Studied for Effect On Human Beings

New fears that horse "sleeping sickness," which has already killed tens of thousands of American horses, may also be transmissible to human beings were indicated in reports of a recent study by the American Foundation for Animal Health.

The reports are based on deaths in Minnesota, Texas, and Eastern seaboard states, in areas where equine encephalomyelitis (sleeping sickness) has been prevalent. In one of the eastern states two individuals who were handling horses afflicted with sleeping sickness were stricken with a disease that was identified as human encephalomyelitis. One man died and the other recovered.

In 1938 a number of acute cases were reported among children along the East coast, with an extremely high rate of mortality. Examinations revealed the presence of a virus which was believed to be the "eastern" strain of horse sleeping sickness. This was followed in the same year by the discovery of human cases of equine encephalomyelitis in Minnesota. These, however, were traced to a different strain of the virus, the "western" strain. Still later, similar reports were received from the Pacific coast—and this year fresh reports of cases in human encephalitis have come from Minnesota, Texas, and other states.

As a result, authorities are warning that horse sleeping sickness may be transmissible to man, although they are unwilling to say that this is definitely the case. In fact, horse sleeping sickness is still a highly baffling disease. It kills thousands upon thousands of valuable horses every year, yet veterinary scientists are still not sure of the exact means by which it is transmitted. They believe it is passed on by the bites of mosquitoes and other insects. The only known protection for horses, to date, is by immunization. This year veterinarians are vaccinating horses against the disease with a new concentrated form of a vaccine developed from chick embryos, and report better than 95 per cent immunity in field usage. However, vaccination of this type should be done before a horse is stricken by the disease, it is said.

Authorities are urging that in areas where horse sleeping sickness is raging, persons working with horses should exercise care in handling the animals, and should be particularly watchful against mosquitoes and other biting insects.

Camouflage Takes Shine From U. S. Army Truck

WASHINGTON.—It's farewell to the shiny army truck. In fact, it's all right even to allow some dust to stay on the surface. Old army chauffeurs who spent hours brightening up paint until it glistened may think there's just a laxing of work, but the new system was developed for better camouflage. Lustreless paint now used on army vehicles makes it difficult to see a truck from the air or from distances on land.

Japan's Problem of 'Saving Face' at Home and Keeping Out of Trouble With U. S. . . . Censorship and Reuben James Incident Dis- cussed.

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON.—Some careful students of the Far Eastern situation are convinced that the real rulers of Japan have decided to provoke a war with the United States, although they—the rulers of Japan—are confident that such a war would result in a Japanese defeat.

This extraordinary view becomes easier to understand when it is explained, though there is no thought here of trying to convince anybody that it is an accurate picture of the thinking of the men who are deciding things in Tokyo. No one in Washington pretends really to know about that. We can only speculate on the facts in hand.

But here is the theory: First we must give the proper weight to the Far Eastern notion about face-saving. Also that it is better to die gloriously than to live ignominiously. With that as the premise of the calculation, we then proceed to the present situation, which is that Japan has been failing badly in China, though she had a tremendous success in aggression in Indo-China.

The latter is highly important in the long-range view, and in economics when the world war is over. But it was not a triumph out of which the army and navy could take any satisfaction. It was achieved simply and solely because Germany ordered France to let the Japanese have what they wanted.

Then, having obtained through her ties with Berlin in Indo-China what she had failed utterly to obtain by her own arms in China proper, and with a gateway opened to Singapore and the Far Eastern islands of Holland which Japan has so long coveted, Nippon finds the way blocked by what amounts to a threat of war from the United States.

Japanese Strategy

Japan has been waiting and hoping for two things—first that Russia would crumble under the Nazi blows, and be able to offer no resistance to Japanese aggression in the maritime provinces of eastern Siberia; and second, that the United States would become so involved in the Atlantic that Japan could risk aggression to the South. Complete defeat of Russia would also mean that Britain would again have to face the fight of her life, in North Africa, in the region to the north of Iran, and possibly on her own soil.

She is still waiting, but there is no assurance that Russia will not be able to resist on her Pacific coast no matter what happens in Europe. (Japan probably made her recent border attack to feel out that situation.) And there is every indication that Uncle Sam would get very busy if Japan goes after what she really wants.

So—stretched to the breaking point by her efforts up to now—and unable to satisfy any of the elements of her population by her achievements, the rulers may decide to gamble. There is 1 chance in 10, or 20—however they figure it—that the United States navy could be defeated and the Philippines overrun. That would make Singapore and the Dutch East Indies easy picking, assuming the Jap fleet were still strong and the British still busy elsewhere.

But if the Jap fleet were crushed, if bombers ravaged Japanese inflammable cities and blew up her oil supply (all of which is above ground since the 1923 earthquake), then Japan would be able to quit with honor! She could depend on the United States to make fair terms of peace. And nobody would lose face!

Reuben James Incident And Censorship

Censorship is generally exasperatingly stupid. It is the stupidity, far more than that natural desire of any government to cover up its blunders from an inquiring press, which causes newspaper men to worry about it.

So it will seem strange that the writer should advocate more drastic censorship than we are having, so far as one particular kind of news is concerned.

But—why was the sinking of the Reuben James announced when it was? Why could not the news of that sinking have been delayed until a complete list of the saved could have been announced along with it?

The moment the sinking was announced the mothers, fathers, sweethearts and friends of the boys on board the ill-fated destroyer received a blow that would be difficult to exaggerate. Then came the word, some six or seven hours later, that 44 enlisted men had been rescued. Accompanying this was the assurance that this did not mean hope should be abandoned for the other enlisted men, nor for the officers.

Ex-Soldier Is Slain by Bride In Tickle Tiff

Cow Milking and Jealousy Contribute to Wrath of Angry Woman.

MASON CITY, IOWA.—"I'm dead," exclaimed the young man, and collapsed on the bed toward which a blonde young woman was leading him.

The young woman was Mrs. Jennie Decker Brunner, daughter of a truck farmer of Crystal Lake, Iowa, and a bride of six months.

Jennie grabbed a .30 caliber lever action rifle from the bedroom and hid it in the milkhouse. She jumped into the family automobile and drove a mile and a half to the home of her father-in-law. He saw her tearing up to his door and, rushing to meet her, he demanded: "What's the matter, Jennie?"

"I shot Sam," the woman answered. The farmer called his wife and drove with all possible haste to the Brunner home. There, lying dead on the bed was Sam Brunner, 26, native of Eagle Grove, Iowa, farmer, former soldier, firearms enthusiast, son of George Brunner.

Says He Was Jealous.
Because there was no telephone in the Sam Brunner farm home, his father and mother had to drive to the farm of E. E. Doescher to call Sheriff Tim Phalen of Cerro Gordo county.

Deputies Cal Dwan and Walter Balek joined the Brunners and went back to arrest the widow.

They found Jennie Brunner still at the home of her parents-in-law. "I wish I still had him," she burst out when told that her husband was dead. "I don't know why I killed him."

After Sam married the hazel-eyed Jennie last spring, George Brunner rented for them the farm eight miles northwest of Mason City.

Jennie declared Sam was jealous and often abused her. She said she threatened to leave her husband after he "beat me up" two weeks before.

"He beat me," she said, rolling up the left sleeve of her house dress to exhibit a black and blue spot still there after two weeks, "to show off in front of his brothers. He beat me in front of other visitors. But we were happy when we went to bed Monday night."

'I Ticked Him.'

Mrs. Brunner related what happened before the tragedy. "We were playing around in bed this morning," she said, "while I was trying to get him to go milk the cows. To get him started to dress, I tickled him under the arms where he couldn't stand it."

That made him mad, and he brought up the subject of my telling him I was going to leave him. He said if I didn't quit talking about that he was going to kill me.

"He got his pistol from under his pillow, where he always kept it, and we agreed to be friends and go into the kitchen to look at the clock."

"I had my arm around his waist urging him to get his clothes on."

"We got just around the kitchen door to look at the clock."

Upon seeing the clock, which said 8:15 a. m., she insisted it was time to milk the cows.

Her husband turned back into the bedroom, commenting that he "didn't care about the cows." At this point, and apparently without further words, the young wife seized the pistol from her husband and began firing. She said he didn't threaten her with the weapon; that it was customary for him to carry the gun with him always.

'Next of Kin' in Britain Can't Even Show Grief

LONDON.—"The next of kin have been informed . . ."

Behind that sentence by which Britain announces the death of her soldiers, sailors, and airmen lies one of the grimmest situations of the war—the silent, inward suffering of the living who may not even disclose their mourning.

Here is what happens. A naval officer's ship is sunk. The admiralty quietly informs the wife or parents but impresses on them that nothing can be said about it. "It might give information to the enemy," is the counsel.

The wife, or parents—or often the fiancée—must smile and carry on in the normal way. They go through dozens of trying scenes.

"What do you hear from John?"

"When's Bill getting leave?"

These are questions for which no truthful and yet obediently patriotic answer can be given.

Only after the government issues a communique describing a particular action may the bereaved tell of their losses.

That Ace of Spades Is Hard Luck Card for Him

MARBLEHEAD, MASS.—A suspected burglar gave himself a raw deal when he allegedly dropped an ace of spades in a private home. Police matched the card with a deck found on the suspect and noted that the ace was missing from the deck. They locked him up on a charge of breaking and entering in the night time. Local wags said it was a case of "trumping" an ace by someone.

LaGuardia, Penniless, Came to the Right Place

A few years back, Fiorello LaGuardia, New York's peppery mayor, was addressing a group of Salvation Army workers before a large audience. The mayor gave a long and fiery speech in praise of the organization. At the finish, the plate was passed. When it came to LaGuardia, he reached into his pocket for money. A blank look came into his face when he could not find any. He fumbled desperately in all pockets. Sensing his predicament, the commissioner of the Army said in a loud voice: "That's all right, the Salvation Army is the right place to come to when a man hasn't a nickel!"

Resources of Nature Offer Opportunity For 'Unlimited' Production in United States

By WHEELER McMILLEN

(Mr. McMullen is president of the National Farm Chemurgic Council, which has as its objective the advancement of the industrial use of American farm products through applied science. He explains below some of the principles of chemistry in relation to the future of the United States.)

There is a single fact in science that has far reaching significance for the future of the United States. I refer to the fact that of the entire composition of nearly every plant growth, whether it be a pumpkin, an ear of corn, or a walnut tree, roughly 98 per cent of the substance is manufactured by nature from atmosphere and moisture. Only about 2 per cent, on the average, is actually extracted from the soil. In other words, the resources we say are derived from the soil are actually derived, by the miraculous action of sunshine, from the atmosphere and moisture.

Within the borders of the United States may be found nearly every known combination of the attributes of plant growth—of temperature, of soil characteristics, of rainfall and humidity, of altitude and length or intensity of sunlight.

We have air and rain and sunshine available in illimitable and inexhaustible quantities.

The significance of this fact is that there need be absolutely no upper limit to the potential production of the United States, except the limit imposed by human ignorance of how to take full advantage of the laws of nature. These superabundant possibilities for the production of raw materials from air, moisture, sunshine and soil, are unlike those of mineral production.

Conceivably the stores of wealth nature had deposited underground may in some distant century become exhausted, or become too inaccessible for economical use. Plant growth, on the other hand, is renewable, usually annually, with each cycle from seed to harvest.

Within the Twentieth century, two important new tools have been developed for the utilization of our plant raw materials.

The art of the organic chemist, a Twentieth century art, has added enormous importance to plant substances as industrial raw materials. With this art crops need no longer be regarded merely as sources of food, clothing and shelter. The chemical industries take the crops for their cellulose, proteins, starches, sugars, and oils, and convert these compounds into innumerable superior products for every-day use.

Alongside the organic chemist is the plant geneticist, with his art of improving plants for specific purposes. He has made it possible for the first time to grow crops to industrial specifications, as is actually being done with cotton, soybeans and other plants.

character and finances. All of these, it was felt, are fields in which "our education system can contribute."

For twenty-nine years Dr. Wood has been a student of education's duties in helping women to understand their responsibilities toward democracy. Need for education to do something about this has been present since suffragist days, he believes, for since that time, the U. S. has emphasized women's opportunities in democracy rather than their responsibilities.

U. S. Woman Has a Job In Democratic World

COLUMBIA, MO.—U. S. women need better training for housewifely and motherly duties of tomorrow was the gist of the conclusions reached at a huge forum of sociologists, economists and feminine leaders held at Stephens college here.

Called at the suggestion of Dr. James Wood, president of the college, the forum decided that the salient points of training were health,

Vanished Men

By GEORGE MARSH

W.N.U. Service

THE STORY SO FAR: Six men traveled the Chibougaman trail and six men died. Later they were reported drowned. Murder is suspected. Garry Finlay, brother of one of the six; Red Malone, Mounted Police officers,

They stood on the gravel beach and Blaise pointed across the lake to the western hills where a dull glow streaked the violet sky.

"Why, it's a forest fire!" exclaimed Finlay.

"You suppose Wabistan's behind this?"

"That's just what I suppose, Red!"

On the second day the yellow smudge of sun glowed dully through a shroud of smoke. Leaving Lise in camp, the three men, with Patamish, started in the Peterboro for Isadore's.

They landed below the post and put Patamish ashore to find Lise's hidden clothes bag, learn what he could and return at once.

"What's that, Garry?"

"It's that overdue plane! Come on! He's caught and can't see where to set her down!"

"Give him three shots, Red! He could circle and set her down south of us if this breeze would only stiffen!"

The Lee-Enfield crashed three times.

"He heard our shots!" He's circling!" With the rush of a great bird the plane shot past the canoe, caught the water with a splash and bobbed on ahead to disappear into the smoke haze.

Finlay shook his lifted paddle. "We've got him! Come on! They may start hunting him from Isadore's."

As the boat moved up to a pontoon a voice called from the open door of the cabin fuselage: "That you, Isadore? I've been lost two hours hunting—"

"Don't move a hand!" Red rasped. "Come out on the pontoon, one hand in the air!"

"What the—what's wrong here!" objected the astonished pilot. "This is Waswanipi, ain't it? Where's Isadore?"

"Come out on—that—pontoon—or—"

"Say, what's this, a case of high-jack? Who are you birds? Where's Isadore?"

Finlay flung back from the door of the fuselage: "We're Mounted Police and you're under arrest!"

"Good Gaud!" The pilot's face dropped into his hands.

Finlay peered into the freight compartment of the plane. "Look, Red! She's loaded with cases."

"Now what in the devil's this stuff?"

"Red," announced Garry, opening the tin foil wrapper of the package in his hand, "these are nothing else than bricks of opium, worth one hundred and fifty dollars apiece in Amsterdam. What Isadore gets for them, God only knows! We've struck Isadore's gold, Red! And what a strike!"

Red's blue eyes bulged as he stared at the opium brick in Finlay's hand. "Well, I'll be hamstrung! Faking a gold strike on the river to cover his smuggling dope from a ship on the Bay. That clears up a heap!"

"It does more. We've solved by accident the most baffling case of narcotic smuggling in the history of the Dominion police. They've been watching the seaports for years for this stuff. It was sent from Europe by a schooner to Hudson's Bay, flown here and then south. Don't you realize that this means a citation and promotion for us both?"

Garry's face sobered with mock gravity. "You will remember, Constable Malone, that we have suspected this from the day we reached Waswanipi and have hung on by our teeth for the sole purpose of capturing this shipment and breaking up this ring of smugglers."

"In a bear's left eye I will! We've been after Isadore for murder and still are. But chief, Mrs. Thistle Malone will never know that her red-headed husband isn't as clever as he looks."

Towing the plane, they groped their way into a cove and anchored it to makeshift buoys. At the camp on the mainland Wabistan was waiting.

"If the wind holds, the fire will reach Isadore's," said Finlay.

Wabistan's face wore the innocent look of a child. "Yes, Isadore will burn."

"You set that fire, chief!"

A pained expression spread over the gnarled features of the old man. He shook his head in dissent.

Finlay's eyes twinkled. "Whoever did it, chief, was a personal friend of mine. The fire will take most of Isadore's men into the bush, today, and give us our chance. Now, let's move."

Finlay and Red, wearing service blouses, belts and Stetson hats, hurried with Blaise to the living quarters. They stood in the doorway of the large living room. At a table on which stood bottles and glasses, two men sat arguing with voices hoarse from prolonged drinking.

"We've got to get out of here, right away!" A large man with a soft face, white from indoor living, pounded his fist on the table, unconscious of the two watching in the doorway. "Jules, this place is doomed! Look at the smoke outside!"

Isadore, who sat with back to the doorway, sneered: "That's from the back-fire Tete-Blanche started! Felix, you're yellow! It won't reach us! We'll stop it on the ridge."

"I'm going to get out, I tell you!" whined Blondell.

"You're drunk!" snarled Isadore. Then, catching the raw terror in Blondell's stare, he wheeled in his chair to meet Finlay's stone-hard face.

"Good afternoon, gentlemen!"

Isadore sat frozen. "Mounted Police! So this is what you were? Damn me for a fool!"

"Okay!" snapped Malone.

The police approached the two waiting men.

"Keep your hands still, Isadore!" snarled Red.

"We've got your plane from the Bay!" Finlay bit off. "That gives us our motive. Didn't want it known in Montreal—that plane from the north! Don't blame you! They've been wondering where that dope came from! Well, you're going to hang for those six men!"

Isadore shook his head as he met the stab of Finlay's pitiless eyes. "No, Jules Isadore will never hang!"

The sound of voices in the rear of the house put the police on their guard. "Watch this door!" warned Malone as he flattened against the wall beside the closed door.

The door was swung wide and, covered with char and soot, the panting Tete-Blanche stared into the room.

His smudged face flamed as his bloodshot eyes marked Finlay standing over the two men. Ignoring the .45, with a lightning movement the half-breed reached behind his back and flung his hand forward with a grunt. The knife sang like an arrow past the chest of the dodging Finlay, who held his fire, and stuck quivering in the wall beyond.

"The white-haired boy, at last!" With a roar Red dove from the side at the surprised breed, hurling him headlong into the room. Like a cat Tete-Blanche gained his feet and closed with the trooper.

"Don't move!" bit off Finlay, covering Isadore with his .45 as the two fought across the room.

The killer was powerful and slippery as a snake. Winding his legs around Malone's, they went to the floor with a crash. Fighting with the strength of despair again and again Tete-Blanche wriggled out of the jiu-jitsu grips Red started to put on him. Then the enraged Malone wrenched his right hand free and hunched his fist into Tete-Blanche's jaw. But the panting killer only snarled and redoubled his efforts to break the trooper's hold.

By sheer strength the infuriated Mountie pinned his man to the floor, forced back his chin and jammed his thumbs deep into the vital pneumo-gastric nerves under the jaw. A shudder ran through the half-breed and he lay helpless from the shock. Malone lifted him, rose, and hurled him headlong into the stone fireplace.

"There's your killer, Isadore! He'll shoot no more boys from ambush! Take him! He's yours!"

Isadore's face was drained of color as his dulled eyes stared at the his stepdaughter. Finlay quickly falls in love with her. Later they are attacked by Indians. Escaping they make preparations to seize a mysterious seaplane which is expected to arrive on the lake. Meanwhile Lise joins them for safety.

sprawled heap on the hearth. Then he slowly nodded as he muttered: "Yes, there he is! There he is! A'voir, good and faithful servant!"

With a quick movement his hand shot to the desk drawer, fumbled, then found his mouth before the surprised Finlay seized him. He swallowed twice then sneered into Finlay's face: "No rope for Jules Isadore! I prefer prussic to hemp! Good-night, gentlemen!"

"Tie the hands of that lump of flesh in the chair by the name of Blondell and we'll find Blaise. We must work fast or we'll be caught."

Finlay hurried to the shore where he found Wabistan at the boats, with the prisoners and coughing women, their heads swathed in wet cloths. Corinne rushed to him.

"Lise!" she cried. "Is she safe?"

"Yes, she swam to the island! I'll take you to her!" Garry turned to Red. "Quick! Hop into that ship and see that the pilot taxis her to the island!"

In the morning the hum of an engine drew Garry and Blaise to the shore.

"Who can it be, Red? Isadore wasn't expecting another plane."

"Red grinned. "Not that I know of!"

Finlay scratched his head, then turned to Blaise: "I forgot to ask you. What became of Batoche? I asked Wabistan but none of his men had seen him."

Blaise slowly traced the white scar across his temple with a thick finger. "Batoche, he come and crawl around" to look in front window. Den I reach him!"

"Where are your glasses, Red?" His eyes snapping with amusement Malone handed his glasses to his chief.

"Blue body! Yellow wings! Why, it's one of ours, Red! It's a police plane! The Mounties are here!"

The plane was set down and taxied up to the waiting canoe.

The cabin door opened and a red-jacketed man with a grizzled moustache leaned out and waved. "Hi, Sergeant Finlay! Are you all right?"

Garry Finlay thrilled with pride as he replied: "Everything okay, Inspector Haldane!"

Shortly Finlay was telling his story to the inspector and the four men of the rescue party. When he finished, Haldane enthusiastically reached and clapped him on the back.

"Do you realize what you've done against what looked like hopeless odds? You two men have broken the biggest ring of opium smugglers the Canadian police have ever had to deal with!"

Later, when good-bys had been said, Wabistan sat in the Peterboro loaded with supplies which Finlay had given him. With Mikis and Patamish, he waved to the climbing plane carrying Garry, Lise and Corinne.

Followed by the two planes carrying Red, Blaise and the prisoners, bound for Matagami to take the depositions of McNab and his head man, the police plane circled into the west. For a space in silence Finlay gazed back into the northeast where dim, blue hills marked the Waswanipi valley. Lise watched him curiously as he stiffened, lifted his hand in salute and said:

"Good-by, Bob! The Chibougaman Trail is clear!"

DEEP WATER ISLAND

By Alan LeMay

In the vast expanse of the South Pacific Karen Waterson felt as out of place as snow on a straw hat. But John Colt, her lawyer, had convinced her she was heirless to the island of Alakoa, and he was determined to get it for her. Incidentally, John was in love with Karen.

The struggle to wrest the fertile little isle from Richard Wayne and his half brothers makes interesting reading, especially so after Wayne falls in love with the young lady. If you like mystery with your romance this is the story for you.

PERTH, AUSTRALIA. — Annoyed because he continued to stub his toe on a jagged piece of rock on the way to his camp, Thomas Starr, a prospector in Kalgoorlie, applied his pick and shovel. On breaking the rock out of its earthly bed he noticed yellow gleams on the underside. It contained gold worth $875.

Women Beat, Chain Drunken Relative

Take Drastic Methods to Break Booze Habit.

ATLANTA, GA. — Fulton county police reported that women relatives of W. F. Lancaster, 48, a house painter, tied him to a stump and beat him in an effort to break him of going on drinking sprees.

Police found Lancaster bound tightly with a chain and rope to a stump in front of his home. He was exhausted and barely conscious. He had been beaten on the body and there was a bloody gash on his bald head where he had been hit with a brick. A hot sun added to his suffering.

On the ground around the stump were nine empty whisky bottles, with the necks pointing toward the house painter.

Lancaster's wife, daughter, and daughter-in-law were sitting on the porch, calmly talking and sewing. Police said one of the women occasionally had been getting up to hit Lancaster a few blows.

"He raised so much sand he kept us awake at night," one of the women said. "And we finally decided that the women folks would show him a thing or two, and maybe knock some sense into his head."

"All that drinking and carrying-on didn't do any of us any good."

"We had a right smart fight before we got that chain around him, but we fixed him up."

The treatment had the desired effect on Lancaster.

He was asked if he wanted a drink after he had been freed from the stump.

"Hell, no," was the answer.

No charge was filed against the women.

Long-Lost Maya City Believed to Be Located

SANTA ANA, CALIF. — Searchers for the legendary "lost city" of the Mayas returned home from Mexico confident that on the next trip the mystery of the lost civilization will be solved.

"We are quite sure we have found the lost city," said Dana Lamb, who with his wife, Ginger, has been in southern Mexico for many months exploring the primitive country of Chiapas and neighboring states.

Lamb told of flying over unmapped jungle and sighting several ruined cities.

"Then one day we spied a really impressive mass of ruins almost hidden by the thick vegetation, and through further research we became convinced that we had reached our goal."

"We were unable to make verification flights because of bad weather. The arrival of the rainy season made it useless for us to remain. It would take five months to reach the city by land."

Tentative plans of the couple are to return to the region and to descend from an airplane by parachute or possibly with the use of an autogiro.

Exact location of the city appeared to be at the extreme south end of Chiapas, possibly extending into Guatemala State, they said.

French Libraries Suffer Heavily by War Damage

VICHY. — The war damage to France's archives and libraries is detailed in a statement published here.

The greatest loss was at Tours library, where only 1,000 of 30,000 volumes and 2,100 of 8,000 manuscripts were saved. The manuscripts preserved were, fortunately, the most valuable of the collection.

The Beauvais library was destroyed with 40,000 volumes. At Gisors 5,000 books were lost.

A fire that ravaged Evereux was checked just as it reached the library.

Since the armistice serious damage has been done to the Abbeville library, hit by a British bomb June 14, 1940. Damage has also been suffered by the libraries in Brest, Dieppe and Lorient as a result of bombardments by British planes.

Bequest of Fiddle May Bring Him a New Grave

CHEYENNE, WYO. — The fiddle that aged Charlie Williams bequeathed to the Wyoming Pioneer association may rescue his body from the potter's field grave in which it has rested for 10 years.

The instrument, placed in the Wyoming Pioneer Cabin, recently was inspected by an authority who said it was one of the first models made by Jacobus Stainer in 1630.

L. C. Bishop, secretary of the association, said if the violin is as valuable as the expert indicated, the body of Williams will be moved from potter's field and given a new burial.

CHRISTIAN LOVE

LESSON TEXT—John 13:34, 35; I Corinthians 13:1-13.

GOLDEN TEXT—We love him, because he first loved us.—I John 4:19.

Many important things enlist the interest of the Christian, but we need to beware lest we neglect what Jesus declared to be the first and great commandment—that we love God; and its necessary sequel—that we love our neighbor. If love is forgotten (and who can deny that it often is in our day?), the very foundations are shaken. We need a revival of Christian love.

I. Love—A Mark of Discipleship (John 13:34, 35).

Do you want to know whether a man is a Christian? Find out whether he loves his brethren. Such is the test Jesus gives in these verses.

1. Commanded. It is the will and purpose of God that the followers of Christ should have a real love for one another. It is not to be a matter of impulse or chance, but the love God has for us should constrain us to love one another. Thus is love

2. Exemplified. God has loved us. He does love us. How infinitely much is wrapped up in these simple words! He even gave His Son to die for us because He loved us (John 3:16). How then can we withhold our love from Him and from one another?

II. Love—A Christian Grace (I Cor. 13).

In a world where hatred prevails, and is in fact glorified, this chapter needs to be read and reread. We find that love is

1. Essential (vv. 1-3). Life has many excellent gifts and men quite properly seek after them. How do they compare with love, and what do they amount to apart from love? Glowing, angelic eloquence; the far-seeing eye of the prophet; the attainments of knowledge and culture; mountain-moving faith; liberal-hearted charity; martyr-like self-sacrifice—without love they are all as nothing. Apart from Christ and His love operating in our hearts and lives the worthiest attainments of men are vain and empty. Love is the very essence of a satisfying and useful life.

2. Effective (vv. 4-7). Does love really work, or is this just a fine-sounding but obsolete theory? It works.

Think of the things in life which irritate and depress us; then put opposite them the qualities of Christian love as given in verses 4 to 7, and you will agree that what this world needs most of all is love.

Remember that talking about love or reading about it or studying it in the Sunday school will not make it effective. We must put it into practice. Why not start now? You will be surprised at the results.

3. Eternal (vv. 8, 12). Many gifts are only temporary in their usefulness; in fact, almost everything (apart from his service for God) is transient. Even so vital a matter as prophecy shall one day find its end in fulfillment. Hope shall eventually find its longing expectation satisfied. Faith will be justified in seeing what it has believed. Childish things will be put away by the full-grown man, knowledge will increase and darkness disappear.

But love—love is eternal. It never fails, and will never fail. God is love and God is eternal. From all eternity and unto all eternity love continues. Therefore, we agree with Paul who in the verse preceding this chapter (I Cor. 12:31) says that while you may covet the best gifts, here is the more excellent way—love.

Let us be clear about this. Love is not a substitute for regeneration, and certainly regeneration is no excuse for lack of love. Read John 13:34, 35 again and remember that if we are Christ's disciples we will count it a high privilege to keep this first and great commandment of love.

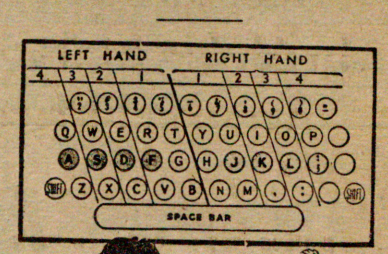

Dependence on God

Poverty in any shape helps to stir in man a sense of need, a disposition to consider himself as dependent. . . . The real puzzle of life consists not in the fact of widespread poverty but in that of widespread affluence; in the fact that so many are sufficiently endowed with "goods" as to believe they can live by them, and so cease to look for their true life to God their Father.—E. Lyttleton.

Death Becomes Transparent

And so the empty tomb becomes the symbol of a thoroughfare between life in time and life in the unshadowed presence of our God. Death is now like a short tunnel which is near my home; I can look through it and see the other side! In the risen Lord death becomes transparent. "O death, where is thy sting?" O grave, where is thy victory?"—Dr. J. D. Jowett.

Growing rapidly each day the new stage is receiving the final finishing touches. Hung up for inspection a few days ago the new curtain will soon be ready for use. It is of deep maroon velvet with a large old English O in the middle of the valance. Gold fringe around the bottom sets off the deep maroon folds.

Last week the new baskets were put up and finished. They are the new pull up type.

The farm mechanics class is helping to install the showers in the dressing room under the stage. They are connected to a coal heated hot water heater and storage tank in the boiler room.

In completing the showers, Mr. Benson had a serious accident when he was hit by a piece of falling pipe which loosened two teeth and cut a gash in his mouth. Everyone sincerely hopes he will feel better soon.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
"Soul and Body" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 23.

The Golden Text was, "Rejoice the soul of thy servant: for unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul" (Psalms 86:4).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "What? Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's" (I Corinthians 6:19, 20).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Soul is the substance, Life, and intelligence of man, which is individualized, but not in matter. Soul can never reflect anything inferior to Spirit. The spiritual man's consciousness and individuality are reflections of God. They are the emanations of Him who is Life, Truth and Love" (pp. 477, 336).

By MRS. FRED KOPELMAN

Week of November 16

The condition of Mrs. Rheinhardt Krohn who underwent a major operation at St. Joseph's hospital Monday is much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kopelman, Mrs. John Parker and son Roy attended the funeral services of their uncle, Charles Elsner at Frankfort Wednesday afternoon.

The Woman's club met Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Adam Markiewicz with Mrs. Ben Brankey as co-hostess. The annual election of officers was held. Mrs. Ray Myers was elected vice-president and Mrs. Walter Paddock treasurer. The names of pals were revealed and new names were drawn for the ensuing year. A white elephant exchange was held. The following program was presented with the hostess of the previous meeting, Mesdames Peter and Clarence Wies, in charge: Introduction by Mrs. Clarence Wies; 'Christmas in Mexico' by Mrs. Harry Parker; 'Social Insurance and employment security' by Mrs. Helen Rowley; Posture and Exercise' Mrs. Clarence Wies; Gadgets for Gifts, answered by all present; Garden report by Mrs. Lee Burnett; Legislation by Mrs. Bertha Loucks. Refreshments were served from an attractively decorated table by the co-hostess, Mrs. Angelo Depra, Mrs. Fred Trash, Mrs. Guy Bump and Mrs. Fred Kopelman will be the hostesses for the Christmas party. The place of meeting will be announced later.

A large group from Homer attended the junior class play at the Lockport high school Friday night. The Misses Betty Rowley, Kataryn Boye, Shirley Jungles, Gwendolyn Wolsted and Eleanor Kopelman sang in the girls chorus between the acts of the play.

Twelve of the younger boys and girls of the Homer church gathered in the home of Mrs. C. G. Rowley Sunday afternoon for a choir practice.

The executive committee of the Fellowship group held a business meeting in the home of Miss Lois Jungles Friday evening.

Miss Jean Smith of Chicago spent the week-end with her cousin Miss June Bertelsen.

The Good Luck Camp of Royal Neighbors will not hold the November meeting due to the Thanksgiving holidays. The December meeting will be held on December 18 and the annual Christmas party will be held at this time. Mrs. Anna Welter and Mrs. Burnette Donahue will be in charge.

The Ladies Missionary Society celebrated their 45th birthday anniversary on Friday night, November 21. A program was presented after which a social hour and refreshments were enjoyed. A silver offering was taken.

Saturday evening Miss Isabel Anderson entertained 16 of her sorority sisters and their boy friends from Chicago in the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Anderson. Upon their arrival, Miss Isabel and Bruce each took a hay-rack and team and gave the young people a hay-rack ride. Following the ride a weiner roast was enjoyed. Others present were Mrs. Ira Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Carlson of Joliet.

Mrs. Joseph Ponkauskas and little son have returned home from St. Joseph's hospital. The baby has been named Richard Wayne.

A very impressive Thanksgiving service was held at the Homer Congregational church Sunday evening. Rev. C. E. Wolsted delivered the sermon and Robert Burch sang a solo. A lovely Thanksgiving centerpiece adorned the table in the

"NAVY INTELLIGENCE"

Is it necessary to be a high school graduate in order to enlist in the Navy?

No. Navy enlistees need not be high school graduates. All applicants will be given an examination containing approximately 100 questions. A grade of 50 per cent or better on this examination is sufficiently high to pass the Navy educational standards. However, a high school education will be valuable to the seaman during his Navy enlistment.

If I enlist in the Navy or Naval Reserve, will I be sent to a Navy Trade School?

All new recruits are sent to one of four Naval Training Stations and after a training period they may take examinations for entrance into Navy Trade Schools. Those recruits who pass their examinations with sufficiently high grades are sent to Navy Trade Schools before assignment to the fleet. While attending these schools, they will receive regular Navy pay and free schooling valued at $1500.

What is the greatest possible pay I can expect to earn during my first term of enlistment?

It is possible to earn as much as $126 a month by the end of your first term of enlistment, and remember that your lodging, medical and dental care are all supplied free.

After I have served my term of enlistment, what benefits do I get for re-enlistment?

Depending on your rate and length of service, you can get a cash bonus up to $600 plus 30 days leave with pay.

What does the term "ash can" mean in the Navy?

An "ash can" is a slang term applied to the depth charge used to combat submarines. The average "ash can" is a container filled with approximately 300 pounds of T.N.T. and can be dropped overboard from a ship and so controlled as to explode at depths ranging from 36 to 300 feet. These are generally carried by the fast ships in the fleet, as a boat dropping a charge regulated to explode at 70 feet depth must move away from the explosion area at a speed of 25 knots or more. These "ash cans" are either rolled off the stern or shot from "y-guns" which hurl one right and one left simultaneously.

front of the church. It was made with pumpkins, squash, corn, gourds, apples and Fall flowers.

Twenty-four Hereford steers have been purchased in Silver City, Tex., for the boys and girls in Will County 4-H work. The steers, drawn by numbers were delivered to the members at the Montgomery Stock yards last week and will be used for their projects.

The orders were pooled and the carload ordered by the Will County Farm Bureau thru the Chicago Producers Commission Association.

Those from the Homer club who purchased steers were Ralph Reiter, George and Rose Brankey, Shirley Dempsey, Donald White and William Kasper.

The November 4H club meeting was held in the home of Ralph and Adella Reiter Thursday night. Mr.

Fay Sims, assistant Farm Advisor was present and gave a few pointers on feeding steers; Shirley Dempsey talked in "Feeding A Pig." Plans were made for the club members to attend the National Livestock Show in Chicago. After a social hour, Mrs. Reiter served refreshments.

Joseph Brankey left Sunday for Madison, Wis., where he will take the winter course at the University. His father, brother George and sisters Rose and Anna Mae accompanied him to the school, returning home the same night.

HOME LIGHTING ADVISOR

The home lighting advisor will measure the light in every part of every room in your house such as the card room, music room, dining room and kitchen, as well as special rooms like the game room, the work shop and the laundry. She will show you how better light means better sight, and she'll also suggest changes to make your rooms lovelier, homier and larger looking. Let her help you! This service is free and without obligation, and you need only phone or send a post card to your local Public Service Store asking to have the home lighting advisor call.

FIRE AND EXTENDED COVERAGE
The Proper Way to Insure.

Add Extended Coverage to Your Fire Insurance

WHAT IT IS

Extended coverage is just what its name implies—it is property insurance intended to cover ALL the principal hazards to which your property is exposed.

These hazards are specified as windstorm, cyclone, tornado, hail, explosion, riot, airplane, self-propelled vehicles, and furnace smoke. All of these threaten total or at least substantial loss to your property, therefore, you should safeguard yourself against them.

Extended Coverage is added by attaching a simple endorsement to your fire insurance policies which literally provides that there be written into the policies all the cover-ages mentioned above wherever the word "fire" appears.

For Complete Safety

It must be attached to your fire insurance policies and cannot be obtained as a separate contract. Furthermore if you have two or more fire insurance policies covering on the same property it must be attached to each policy.

Should your building be partially destroyed by windstorm, cyclone, tornado, hail, explosion, riot, an airplane, or a self-propelled vehicle... and then should fire ensue which burned the structure to the ground, you can see the advantage of having Extended Coverage in your fire insurance policies. Because all perils are insured with the same company, difficulties that might otherwise arise in your loss settlement are removed.

WHY IT'S BETTER

Any of the hazards included in Extended Coverage, if uninsured, could cause you considerable expense. Severe losses cause real financial embarrassment, and frequently wipe out lifetime savings. The need for carrying equal amounts of insurance against every major risk is apparent.

You pay only a fraction for Extended Coverage of what you would have to pay for the same amounts of specific insurance. Investigate the economical cost and see for yourself if it isn't exactly the kind of protection you want.

This Is The Proper Way To Insure

YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO BE WITHOUT INSURANCE, on your Home or Furniture. On $1,000.00 of Insurance on Fire & Extended coverage for one year, the cost is so small it is just a little over ONE CENT A DAY. If you insure for Three or Five years the cost is still less. Say you had a loss of $1,000 on your Home or Furniture, and you had no Insurance, to repair your Home or buy new furniture you made a loan of $1,000 and you paid (6%) six percent interest on your loan, at the end of the year you would pay $60.00 on your loan, this is over 16 cents a day, and you still owe the $1,000 which you borrowed. Just think of it, you can protect your Home or Furniture for just a little over one cent a day, on $1,000. Insure today and protect your property you worked so hard for, for tomorrow you may have a loss.

Fred Goebel Agency WRITES ALL KINDS OF INSURANCE. Call, Write or Phone and I will be at your service. Phone 52W

POPEYE, THE RECRUITING OFFICER, MEETS THE ADMIRAL!

Your pay in the Navy is gravy

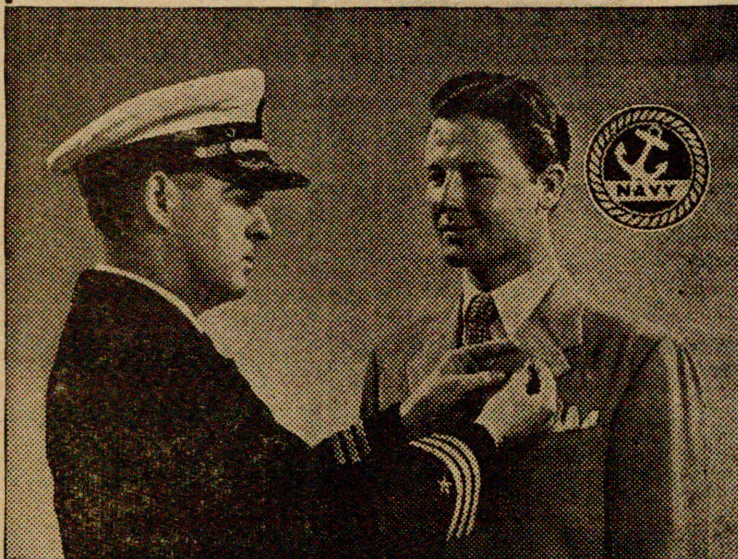

No rent to pay. No food to buy. No doctor's or dentist's bills. Even movies and other entertainment are free. And when you first enlist, the Navy gives you $118.00 worth of uniforms!

And if you want to learn a trade, the Navy is the place to do it. There are forty-five odd trades you can learn... training that's worth hundreds of dollars the first year.

The Navy offers the chance of a lifetime to young men. If you are 17 or over, get a free copy of the illustrated booklet "LIFE IN THE U. S. NAVY," from the Navy Editor of this newspaper. Simply write or call.

U. S. NAVY RECRUITING OFFICER PRESENTS APPLICANT WITH NEW "BADGE OF HONOR"

COMMANDER F. K. O'BRIEN, of the U. S. Navy Recruiting Service, is shown here placing the new Navy "Badge of Honor" on the lapel of an applicant for enlistment in the Navy. (Badge shown above at right.) All ambitious young men who apply for service in Uncle Sam's "Two-ocean" Navy, whether accepted or not, are given this new badge as a mark of their patriotism. To learn of the many opportunities the Navy and the Naval Reserve offer, local men of 17 years and over can get the official illustrated free booklet, "Life in the Navy," from this newspaper's Navy Editor.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Krog and son Richard spent Thanksgiving with Mrs. Krog's sister, Miss Erna Ninneman of Chicago.

Jay Butler is seriously ill in his home. His daughter Mrs. Lyle Rank of Frankfort is staying here during his illness.

The Brotherhood of the Methodist church met Monday night in the church dining room. An interesting program was given. Motion pictures in technicolor were shown. An oyster supper was served.

The Womens club of St. Jude's Catholic church met Tuesday evening for their November meeting with Mrs. Howard Porter. Mrs. James Hayes and Mrs. Ann Smith were co-hostesses.

Mrs. Ernest Rydberg was hostess to the Ladies Aid Society of the Trinity Evang. Lutheran church Tuesday. Plans were made for the Christmas sale to be held in the school auditorium early in December.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Cairns of Chicago spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kost.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Chahk and son Robt. of Detroit spent the week-end here with her brother, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Torrence.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Kohl entertained at a Housewarming party in their new home Saturday night. Music and dancing were the evening's diversion and a buffet luncheon was served at midnight.

Guests were: Mrs. Jessie Dalton of Chicago, Rufus Adams and Geo. Brown of Washington, D.C., Chas. Pease, Mrs. Floyd Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Penn, the Walter Baers, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reinhardt, Mr. and Mrs. F. Carlton Cole, the Chas. Ellises, the Leo Rintelman's, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Whitaker, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. FRANKFORT

Mrs. C. Greatline, age 78 years, died in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Manson La Hue Friday, Nov. 21. She had been in ill health for some time, yet her death came unexpectedly. She leaves to mourn, one daughter Mrs. La Hue and one son Eldon Greatline of Detroit, Michigan. Burial took place Sunday Nov. 23 in West Salem, Ill., which was her home. Mr. and Mrs. LaHue accompanied the body to New Salem Friday afternoon and returned Monday.

Word was received by Mrs. Peter Hansen of Joliet of the death of Mr. William Stauffenberg of Los Angeles, Cal., on Nov. 18 at the age of 79 years. He is survived by his sister Mrs. Clara Hansen and her children, Mrs. Charles Nieland, Mrs. John Hossbach of Joliet and William Hansen of Frankfort who left on Wednesday to attend the funeral in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Milton Holl is improving after having been seriously ill following the birth of her son on November 16 in Silver Cross hospital.

Corinne Krusemark, Katherine Priami, Patricia Malek and William Bettenhausen of the University of Illinois; Janette Heusner of Knox College, Virginia Warning and Annette Kohlhaugen of I. S. N. U. spent Thanksgiving vacation here with their families.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Harnack honored the first birthday of their nephew Dennis Harnack son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harnack Wednesday Nov. 19 with a dinner. Mrs. Alvin Harnack celebrated her birthday on Wednesday, Nov. 20.

Mr. and Mrs. James Schieber of Joliet are the parents of a son born November 13 in Silver Cross hospital. Mrs. Schieber is the former Janelda Heiland and a niece of Mrs. Bertha Nieland.

Mr. and Mrs. John Buch celebrated their fifty-first wedding anniversary Sunday, Nov. 23. The family enjoyed a pot luck dinner in honor of the occasion.

Leroy Hansen of Wilmington is recovering from bronchial pneumonia in the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hansen.

Wilbur Topp, who is employed as a clerk in Clover farm store, is a medical patient in Silver Cross hospital.

Chester Ebert of Scott Field spent last week-end in the home of his mother.

Mrs. William Wischover will entertain the Amite Sewing club in her home December 2.

The Women's club will sponsor a public card and bunco party on December 5 in the Frankfort Public School Gymnasium. The proceeds will be used to buy a flag for the school.

The Frankfort Light and Heavyweight basketball teams will open their season Nov. 30 by playing the St. Peter's Lutheran Church of Joliet in the local gym. Game time is 2:30 p. m.

"Imagine me, steering a Destroyer!"

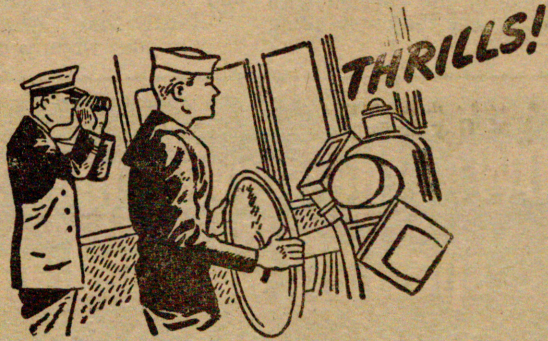

"And I've had two pay raises in only eight months! I'll say you can't beat Uncle Sam's Navy!"

YOU couldn't ask for a greater thrill than that which a fellow gets when he comes back home wearing a trim Navy uniform. The folks crowd around. They all want to know where you've been, what you've done. And man, do you have stories to tell!

GREATEST LIFE IN THE WORLD

You're proud. And you should be. For you've been leading the greatest life in the world. And it's a thrill to tell about it, too. A thrill to see the admiration in the eyes of the One and Only Girl as you tell about the first time you steered a Destroyer. Or handled a P.T. Boat at more than 45 miles per hour. Or stepped out in front of your shipmates to receive your first promotion.

And with that promotion came an increase in pay. And there were more to come. Second Class. First Class. And then Chief Petty Officer. Many might even go to Annapolis. Or to Pensacola with the flying cadets!

Exciting? You bet, and fun too. Something doing all the time. Real he-man's stuff. Boxing. Baseball. Football. Swimming. AND MOVIES... previews, too!

LOOK WHAT THE U. S. NAVY AND NAVAL RESERVE OFFER YOU

FREE TRAINING worth $1500. Nearly 50 trades and vocations to choose from.

GOOD PAY with regular increases. You may earn up to $126 a month.

EACH YEAR you are entitled to a generous vacation period, with full pay.

GOOD FOOD and plenty of it.

FREE CLOTHING. A complete outfit of clothing when you first enlist. (Over $100 worth.)

FREE MEDICAL CARE, including regular dental attention.

FINEST SPORTS and entertainment any man could ask for.

TRAVEL, ADVENTURE, THRILLS—You can't beat the Navy for them!

BECOME AN OFFICER. Many can work for an appointment to the Naval Academy or the Annapolis of the Air at Pensacola.

FUTURE SUCCESS. It's easy for Navy trained men to get good-paying jobs in civil life.

LIBERAL RETIREMENT-PAY for regular Navy men.

FREE TRAINING WORTH $1500

And all this time you're taking care of your future! The Navy said, "Pick a trade—we can make you an expert." And they gave you nearly 50 skilled trades and vocations to choose from: Radio expert, machinist, welder, aviation mechanic, dental technician, electrician—to mention a few.

Yes, training that would be worth $1500 to you in one year's time. Training that will assure you of a well-paid job in civil life. Yet you get paid while learning—get your keep and a complete outfit of clothing free.

Where else in the world are there such opportunities for thrill, for fun, for a future as in Uncle Sam's Navy?

Get this FREE booklet

Mail coupon for your free copy of "Life in the U. S. Navy," 24 pages, fully illustrated. It answers all your questions. Meet the Pot Roast—Juicy and Tender
(See Recipes Below.)

Savory Meals

Pep up the personality of your meals by serving meats more often as the weather becomes frost-nipped and colder. Meats are synonymous with good, wholesome, hearty meals because they're satisfying and filling. Meat sets good tone to the meal and rounds it out to give you a sense of completeness when you've finished eating.

Meat is honest and straightforward both in flavor and purpose. Its abundance of vitamins and minerals really come through and give you sustaining energy. All in all meat contains nine out of the thirteen food essentials of a normal diet.

First is protein and meat's proteins are complete. They help to build or repair body tissues which you wear down every day and keep you on good maintenance level. It has iron the oxygen carrier, copper, iron's partner and the builder of hemoglobin.

Meat has phosphorus that helps calcium in building good teeth and bones and helps give you energy. Meat has fat, too, producer of more energy and heat.

As for vitamins, meat is an important source of four: vitamin A, the resistance and growth vitamin; thiamin (vitamin B1) which helps the body translate sugars and starches into energy; riboflavin, of which meat is the top source, that helps prevent nervous disorders, and finally nicotinic acid, which prevents a nervous digestive disorder known as pellagra.

Fortunately for economy's sake, the lower-priced cuts of meat are just as good for these minerals and vitamins as the higher-priced ones. Today's column gives you tricks and tips on how you can use them for savory meals and have them juicy, tender, and full of flavor.

First call is for pot roast which you can make just as desirable as the best steaks and chops:

*Pot Roast With Vegetables.

Wipe meat with a damp cloth. Brown in hot fat and add one or two small onions sliced to meat while it is browning. Season meat with salt and pepper. Combine ½ cup catsup with 1 cup hot water and add to meat. Place in a roaster or cast-iron skillet or pot, cover tightly, and allow to simmer gently 45 minutes to the pound. Add more water if necessary. Whole carrots and onions may be added to the meat and cooked with it the last 45 minutes of the cooking period.

LYNN SAYS:

You're going to sell nutrition to your family not just because of its virtues but by attractively garnished, well-cooked food. Here's how:

Whenever possible serve the vegetables with the meat, as browned potatoes, whole carrots, browned onions. These can be placed around the meat for effective coloring.

Radish roses with parsley brighten almost any kind of meat platter.

Spinach, chopped, seasoned and mixed with white sauce can be made into nests or mounds and served around meat.

Baby beets may be scooped and filled with green peas served around the meat or on a platter by themselves.

Ham can be scored in circles for a change by using a small cookie cutter and a maraschino cherry placed in each circle. Circles look best if they overlap.

Bananas or pineapple slices broiled make a tantalizing accompaniment to baked ham, roast beef or lamb chops.

Slices of orange topped with a smaller slice of jelly is excellent for meat platters.

THIS WEEK'S MENU

Apple, Celery, Raisin Salad
Bread and Butter Beverage
Baked Custard, Strawberry Jam
Sugar Cookies
*Recipe given

Veal is tender and delicate and deserves careful cooking.

Breaded Veal Cutlets. (Serves 6)

2 pounds veal steak, cut in 6 pieces
1 egg
Cornflake crumbs
1 small onion, chopped
Salt and pepper
4 tablespoons lard
1 No. 2½ can of tomatoes

Dip pieces of meat into the egg and cornflake crumbs which have been seasoned with salt and pepper. Brown in hot lard on both sides, using a heavy frying pan or skillet. Add tomatoes and chopped onion, cover and cook slowly for 1 hour.

Variation: Make as above omitting tomatoes and onion. Add 1 cup of sour cream after meat is browned and cook for 1 hour. Thicken the sour cream gravy with flour and water and serve.

A cut which you may not have used is lamb shanks, but I assure you they are simply delicious when braised. They'll be a good food dollar stretcher for you this season:

Braised Lamb Shanks. (Serves 6)

6 lamb shanks
2 tablespoons lard
Salt and pepper
1 cup celery
1 cup carrots, cut fine, if desired
1 cup green beans, cut fine, if desired

Brown the lamb shanks in hot lard. Season with salt and pepper. If you're using vegetables, place them in the bottom of the casserole and add a small amount of water. Put in the lamb shanks. Cover and cook in a slow oven (300 degrees) 2 hours.

Kidneys are right up there among the top-notchers as a source of riboflavin, preventer of nervous digestive diseases. They're good broiled with bacon and good also in this delicious savory loaf:

Kidney Loaf. (Serves 6)

1 pound of beef kidney
1 cup milk
8 slices bread
¾ cup bacon drippings
3 slices bacon
1 small can pimientos
Salt and pepper
3 tablespoons grated onion
½ teaspoon powdered sage, if desired

Wash kidney in cold water. Drain well and grind, using internal fat. Pour milk over bread and soak. Combine all ingredients except bacon and mix thoroughly. Line bottom of pan with uncooked slices of bacon, add meat mixture and pack firmly. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 1½ to 2 hours.

What could be better than spareribs with barbecue sauce as a tasty meat dish on a cold night? Bake the spareribs brown and crispy and brush them with the sauce for a dish you'll long remember and enjoy looking at:

Barbecued Spareribs. (Serves 6)

5 pounds spareribs
Brown spareribs under broiler. Cover with the following sauce and bake about 2 hours in a covered pan in a slow (325 degrees) oven.

Barbecue Sauce.

1 small onion chopped
2 tablespoons lard
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons brown sugar
3 tablespoons lemon juice
¾ cup catsup
¾ cup water
Salt and pepper
1 teaspoon paprika
Dash of ground cloves and cinnamon

Brown onion in lard and add remaining ingredients. Brush over spareribs.

EXPLAINING THE PRICE RISES
("Retailers must explain to customers the reason for advancing prices. The public doesn't understand the situation.")—Louis E. Kirstein, chairman of the American Retail Federation.

Customer—How much are fresh eggs today?

Retailer—Sixty-five cents a dozen. Customer—I said a dozen, not two dozen.

Retailer—I heard you. Sixty-five cents a dozen. Five cents extra if I make an explanation.

Customer—How about storage eggs?

Retailer—Forty-two cents, and I'll make my explanation a cent cheaper.

Customer—Give me twenty cents' worth of eggs and one cent's worth of explanation. Why should eggs be up?

Retailer—It's the defense program.

Customer—Are we sending eggs to Russia?

Retailer—No, but Europe is getting a lot of our hens. And you know about the straw shortage, don't you?

Customer—No.

Retailer—All the straw is being used for Gallup straw votes. And with so little straw in their nests the hens won't lay. Is it clear?

Customer—No. I'll take a loaf of bread. Is that up?

Retailer—Yes, and I'll explain that. The country is short of dough.

Customer—If it ain't soon will be. How about baloney? There is no shortage of that, is there?

Retailer—No, but it's gone up in sympathy. Baloney is one of our most sympathetic products. And don't forget we are sending a tremendous amount of baloney to Europe.

Customer—This is the first time I've heard anybody admit it.

SCENE II—A HABERDASHERY

Customer—How much are $2 shirts today?

Retailer—Three dollars and fifty cents. And I'll throw in a full explanation.

Customer—Shirts aren't necessary to the defense, are they?

Retailer—Of course they are. Would you defend the American way without a shirt?

Customer—I may have to!

Retailer—Could you use some socks? They've only gone up fifteen cents a pair.

Customer—Is there a sock shortage?

Retailer—No, but it's harder for me to explain why they should cost more, so I charge extra.

SCENE III—A RESTAURANT

Customer—What would you suggest?

Waiter—Our 85-cent order of goulash is very good at $1.25 a plate.

Customer—Good heavens! Why should goulash be up?

Waiter—It's the OCCG. Office for the Control and Co-ordination of Goulash.

Customer—Must there be a federal board to control goulash?

Waiter—Sir, today there must be a federal board to control everything.

Customer—Bring me a ham sandwich. With mustard and a complete explanation why it should cost more.

Waiter—I'll be glad to explain everything. Do you understand inflation at all?

Customer—Not at all.

Waiter—Good! I'll explain it then.

THE BACHELOR LOOKS AT A FRIEND'S CHILD

Blessings on the, little boy,
Bellowing with fiendish joy!
My heart leaps to see you, lad,
Riding bareback on your dad.

When your daddy opes his trap,
How you prattle, little chap!
A cheerful hail, you lusty scion! ...
I'm glad you're hizz'n and not "mion."

—M. E. SMITH

Uncle Sam has cracked down on an aluminum company which he says diverted metal needed for defense, to companies using it for ornamental work on slot machines, pin ball games and juke boxes. There are times when some of our biggest industries don't seem to be any more appreciative of the crisis than the average man.

Household Hints

It takes less sugar for stewed apples if sugar is added after cooking.

A teaspoon of baking powder in the water in which meat and vegetables are cooked will help make them tender.

If food burns in a pan, shake a generous amount of soda into it, fill with cold water and let stand on back of stove until pan can be easily cleaned.

Leftover mashed potatoes can be fashioned into small cakes and used for holding creamed foods, shaped into flat cakes and browned, or then can be used for covering meat, fish or vegetable "pies."

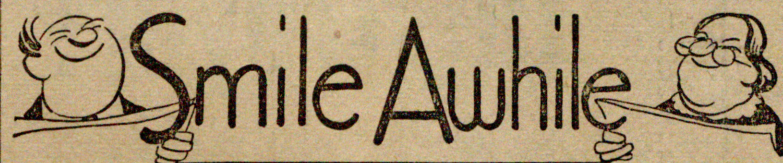

Crocheted bedspreads can be washed, but they should be carefully spread out on a clean sheet to dry and not hung on a line.

Keep in mind that rubber darkens silverware, so never let anything with rubber on it remain in the silver drawers. Use cord or ribbon to hold silver together in its case—never fasten with rubber bands.

Directly under the skin of potatoes is a valuable nutritional layer, so, whenever possible, cook potatoes in their jackets. The skin can then be peeled off easily without loss of food value.

Costly Guard

The war department has spent large sums of money to maintain guards at the graves of Presidents and ex-Presidents until their mausoleums were completed and civilian watchmen provided by a memorial association, says Collier's. The military guard, consisting of one officer and twenty-five enlisted men, that watched over the temporary tomb of the late President Harding for almost five years, cost the government nearly $135,000.

His Trouble

Modern Orator—My friends, I am full of uncertainty.

Then a number of people in the audience looked at one another and hoarsely whispered: "He must have had hash for dinner."

Entreating Now

Diner—I would like to change my order.

Waitress—Yes, sir, what would you like to make it?

"I think I'd better make it a petition."

Too Woolly

"Awkward" wasn't strong enough for the new squad.

The sergeant was in despair. After shouting himself hoarse at them, he drew a deep breath.

"It's no use!" he said bitterly.

"It's not a drill instructor you need—it's a sheepdog!"

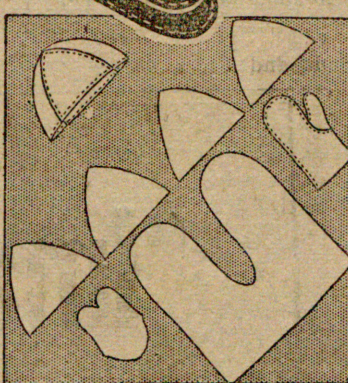

America's favorite cigarette gift package is now making its appearance in the windows and on the counters of local dealers. It is the famous carton of Camel Cigarettes, all dressed up in gay, colorful, Christmas wrapper—complete and ready to give even to the gift card printed on the wrapper. Camels also are featured in an attractive gift of four "flat fifties"—200 cigarettes—packaged in a snow-covered Christmas house. An ideal gift for all smokers—including the men in the service with whom Camels are the outstanding favorite.—Adv.

ASK ME ANOTHER?

A General Quiz

1. In what sport do three kinds of animals take part?
2. What is the diameter of the moon?
3. What was Ty Cobb's lifetime major league batting average?
4. The stamp act of 1765 imposed a duty on what items used in the American colonies?
5. What animal has a bull for a father, a cow for a mother, and is known as a pup?
6. What city is known as the Pittsburgh of the South?
7. What is the record average speed in the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race?
8. When were pigs first brought to America?
9. Who presented the Statue of Liberty to America?
10. Do they celebrate individual birthdays in Japan?

The Answers

1. Fox hunting (the fox, horses and hounds).
2. The diameter of the moon is 2,160 miles.
3. Ty Cobb's average is .367.
4. Paper, vellum and parchment.
5. A fur seal.
6. Birmingham, Ala.
7. The record is 117.2 miles per hour, set by Floyd Roberts in 1938.
8. Thirteen pigs were brought to Tampa by DeSoto 400 years ago, when he with 600 soldiers planned to establish a colony in Florida.
9. The Statue of Liberty which stands on Bedloe's island at the entrance to New York harbor, was presented to the American people by France in 1886, to commemorate the centenary of the American Declaration of Independence.
10. No importance is attached to individual birthdays in Japan. Ages in that country are computed from the first day of the year, rather than the day of birth. Thus two Japanese children, although born 364 days apart, are legally the same age.

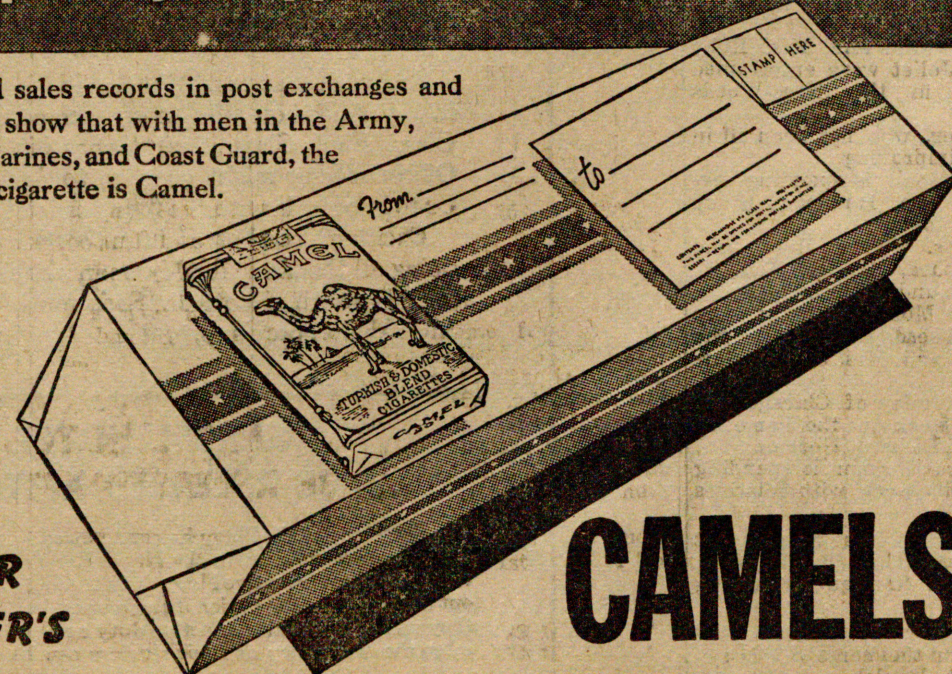

What to give the men in Uncle Sam's services for Christmas is already solved for you by surveys made in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard. Cigarettes and smoking tobacco head the list of gifts the men want most. This naturally places Camel Cigarettes and Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco in the forefront, since actual sales records from the service men's stores, afloat and ashore, show the favorite cigarette is Camel, and the big favorite among smoking tobaccos is Prince Albert, the National Joy Smoke. Dealers are already featuring "Send him a carton of Camels" or a "Pound tin of Prince Albert" for Christmas.—Adv.

PALOS PARK

By DOROTHY ROBSON

Well, another big Thanksgiving dinner is over and I hope no one got sick. I think while someone is changing dates, that they ought to scatter the holidays throughout the year. To have three big dinners one right after the other, is more than a person can stand. They eat so much on Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's that they are sick of eating for a month or two. I believe if New Year's came in April, Thanksgiving in August and leave Christmas where it is, that this country wouldn't be so full of indigestion. Of course, that is only a suggestion and if any one cares to use it, they may do so with my permission.

But now to get down to some of the more serious news items of Thanksgiving:

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Yunker entertained 15 relatives to dinner on that day.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Powell and family were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Willard in Joliet.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Powell entertained Mrs. O. Thomas and daughter and grand-daughter from Warren, Minnesota. They enjoyed their dinner on Sunday.

Mr. George Robson spent the day in Kakankee at the home of friends. It also was his birthday so Thanksgiving was a double celebration for him. While there his friends took him out quail hunting and he says he had wonderful luck.

The annual Red Cross Membership Drive is in full swing with Mrs. Joel L. Collins as chairman, and Mesdames Olsen, Gibbons and Pronger as her assistants. Don't forget to join and help this worthwhile organization.

Verna and Erlene Murray visited at the Mains home one afternoon last week.

Dorothy Robson will sing in a W. L. S. show in Chicago Thursday and Friday nights of this week.

The next Wednesday Afternoon club meeting will be December 3 at the home of Mrs. Edward Cowan on 131st street.

Agnes and Janet Heim spent one day last week at the home of their cousin, Mrs. James Weir in Chicago.

The Neighbor's Pinocle club which was organized two years ago for the winter months only, held their first meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilber Francis in Lockport. Those attending this party were: Mr. and Mrs. John Jedlicka Jr., Mr. and Mrs. William Heatherwick, Mr. and Mrs. Gust Oelke, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Strand, Mr. and Mrs. Linc Macauley, Mr. and Mrs. George and Beverly Powell. The club meets every second Saturday night. Mrs. Strand and Mrs. Lempera won first prize and Mr. and Mrs. Jedlicka both won booby prizes. The place for the next meeting has not yet been announced.

The Palos Community church is starting to work on their Christmas program which will be held December 21. The children will hold their exercises in the morning and the regular play will be held in the evening.

Don't forget the Rib Roast Dinner to be held December 4 at the Palos Community church on 88th avenue, sponsored by the Men's club.

The Palos Ski Jump is the scene of much improvement. The total cost of this venture is $50,000. Flood lights have been installed, the walk has been improved and a lock has been put on the slides with two watchmen, so that when one toboggan is going down another cannot start out until the other is clear of the track. This should avoid a lot of accidents. People come from all the surrounding states, Wisconsin mainly for an hour or two of tobogganing. Of course, last year the ski jump was torn down so tobogganing and sleigh-riding are the only activities that can be enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. McKibben daughter Mary Ellen and Norma Strand attended a near by movie Saturday night.

The Boy Scouts have changed their meeting date from every Monday night to Tuesday nights at the Village Hall. Irving Pronger is Scoutmaster.

The Palos Oak Hill Cemetery Association will hold their next monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Edward Teason in Worth on December 2. This will be a Christmas party and gifts will be exchanged among the members and a pot-luck luncheon will be served.

Twenty-eight people have registered for the Nutrition Class sponsored by the Woman's club. There will be eight lessons given on consecutive Mondays at the Village hall. The next meeting will be held December 1 starting at 10 A.M.

A special Woman's Aid meeting was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Louis Grumiaux to make plans for a Christmas party.

The Palos-Lemont Home Bureau will hold a special meeting of the organization December 4 at the home of Mrs. Ezra McClaughry. This will be an evening meeting and the husbands are invited to attend.

We are sorry to hear of the serious illness of Mrs. William Teason and wish her a very speedy recovery.

Erlene Murray ran a thumb-tack in her knee and had to miss school for a week. Earl and Francis missed three days due to colds.

Gordon and Beverly Powell and Dorothy Robson spent Friday afternoon at the Grand theatre in Blue Island while Mrs. Powell was shopping. All the stores are decked out in the Christmas spirit and reminds us that it is about time for us to start that shopping that we say every year that we are going to start January 1, but never seem to get around to it until December 24.

TINLEY SCHOOL NEWS

Plans are being made for the purchase of a motion picture projector for the Tinley Park school. This type of educational material is greatly needed in the school in bringing to life those things about which children study.

The Parent Teachers Assoc. have undertaken to supply a part of the fund for the purchase of this equipment and on Dec. 17 are presenting a fashion show combined with a card and bunco party. The children of the upper grades will assist in the sale of tickets.

This is another step in putting the Tinley Park school out in front in the field of teaching children by methods through which they learn easily. The equipment purchased will be of the portable type so that it may be used in the individual classroom when such things as pictures will be most meaningful to any particular class.
